Several studies have suggested that neutral endopeptidase (NEP) inhibitors may be effective in congestive heart failure. However, these studies were performed in small populations or in populations consisting predominantly of patients with ischemic heart disease. We have studied the clinical effects of NEP inhibition in a large group of patients with chronic heart failure. In this open-label study, NEP inhibition was performed in a cohort of 2,001 patients with chronic heart failure of different etiology: 11.5% had ischemic heart disease, 26.8% had nonischemic cardiomyopathy (mainly idiopathic dilated cardiomyopathy), and 60.7% had primary val
