Georgia Association of Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology The Georgia Association of Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology (GAASLP) is a professional association that provides training, support, and protection for its members and hearing professionals throughout the state of Georgia. It is located in Atlanta, Georgia and serves over 20,000 people in the state. History The Georgia Association of Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology was created in 1948 by the now defunct Atlanta Speech Bureau. The organization was originally known as the Georgia Speech-Language Association, and it was approved by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) in 1964. The association was known then as the Georgia Speech-Language Association, and it consisted of over 30 members. During the years, the association had struggled with financial stability. They were doing very well, but they were not making enough profit to maintain the association. This prompted the organization to seek some professional assistance. In 1966, the organization was approached 2d92ce491b
