Bhutan, a tiny Himalayan nation, is a choice destination for adventurers. The famous Chang La pass, which leads to Tibet, will test your limits as it is one of the highest mountain passes in the world. This route between India and Tibet is also used by immigrants to enter into India. There are some interesting things to see and experience at this unique mountain pass. Geography The Bhutan portion of the trail starts at Lukla, in the Everest region, and passes through the Nu Phu valley, before crossing into Tibet. The route crosses the great Himalayan mountain range that separates Bhutan and Tibet, known as the Great Himalayan Range. There are two entrances into Bhutan, both from the Tibet side. On the Tibet side, there is a 30-meter-long tunnel under the Chang La. In this tunnel, you will get a glimpse of the border. History The Chang La pass is also famous for being the crossing point of two different people. Tibet is regarded as the "second home" of the Bhutanese, and a large percentage of them live in a valley called Phuentsholing. The pass was known as "Ch 2d92ce491b
