Whether you have a little experience or are just starting out, this Beginner's Guide will teach you what you need to know to edit digital images in the most flexible, reliable and powerful software available. 1. What Is Photoshop? Photoshop is a graphics editor that is popular among photographers, graphic designers and web designers. Photoshop is used to edit images, create new high-quality images, or both. By way of example, if you wish to simply crop an image to remove unwanted sections, you can select an area with a rectangle tool, press alt/opt/command/apple/shift/arrow to crop the area, and then press enter/return to remove the crop. (As in the example above, select the area of the image with the rectangle tool, press the crop button in the tool bar, hold alt/opt/command/apple/shift, and select crop to remove the crop, but if you don't have the crop option selected, then type/hold "r" and press enter to remove the crop. The Advantages Of Photoshop Elements This is a brand new thing for photographers. It has options like crop, straighten, and even retouch. You can also correct lens distortion and even fill in missing details. The brush tool is also easy to use. Photoshop elements is a great way to edit images without spending a lot of money. It is a great alternative to more expensive programs like Photoshop. It is free, so there is nothing stopping you from using Photoshop Elements every day. Table Of Contents: Get Photoshop Elements! 2. Getting Photoshop Elements There is a free version of Photoshop Elements available to download from the Adobe website. There are also paid versions of Photoshop Elements available, ranging from a free version to a high-end paid version. Q: what does a block in rails app do? I'm reading "Agile Web Development with Rails" by Michael Hartl. At first, I saw a block in the book like this: %h2 Welcome to your new application! - @title = "Welcome to your new Application!" - @page_title = "Home" - @page_heading = "Welcome to Your New Application" what does a block do? is it maybe for displaying something? A: As the name suggests a block in ruby is a region of code that can be used to "block" execution. It is similar to a function in other languages. For example def hi puts "Hello" end hi # => Hello There are two types of blocks, anonymous blocks: [1] @@ = "Hello World" puts @@ # => Hello World and named blocks: [2] block_name = "Hello World" puts block_name # => Hello World A: A block is an idiomatically Ruby way of writing a small piece of code. For example, you can write a method that accepts a block which does something with the parameter passed to the method. This would work like so: def do_something(param, &block) block.call(param) end do_something(1, &:calc) For a more detailed introduction to blocks see this answer. , The Perl Journal and PerlMagazine. Sideswipe A sideswipe is a deceptive maneuver used in vehicle racing in which a driver causes the front of their vehicle to swerve, but then throws the vehicle to the outside of the road and sideswipes the vehicle behind. In motorsports, the term is normally used for car racing drivers who like to perform a blindingly fast move that causes the back end of their car to swerve sideways off the road. The term sideswipe has a negative connotation in parts of the racing community. Sideswiping is sometimes confused with the "S-Turn", which is defined more precisely as the driver turning the rear wheels of a racing vehicle before taking it back on the straightaway. "Sideswipe" can also be used to describe an acrobatic move of a car in stunt-style drag racing. Sideswipes are usually performed when a car is about to lose traction from a corner and needs to get going while driving on only the rear wheels, hence the "S" in S-turn. Sideswipes are usually performed by drivers attempting a track position for a pass on the next lap, or attempting a pass on the same lap, or are aimed at a car ahead or beside the driver trying to block a pass to their own car. They are rarely performed by drivers who are in contention, as being about to get out of the car to do a sideswipe is generally regarded as a sign of desperation. The term "sideswipe" may also be used in reference to a technique used in sprint car racing; where a driver will pull out of a turn so hard that the car (or engine, in the case of a gas engine) passes to the outside of the track, and in doing so, swerves side-to-side in an effort to take the car as high as possible. The technique is more commonly used in elimination races, and is often used by a driver who is having trouble maintaining a hold of the lead, and needs to force their way onto the top of the field. Sometimes a driver will simply "sideswipe" into a lead lap, as this is sometimes perceived as being a much more dangerous maneuver than it actually is. Examples Jimmie Johnson has used the move dozens of times throughout his career, including twice in the 2007 Daytona 500 and once in the 2008 Homestead-

Miami race. It is the only maneuver Johnson is known to have
