Are you one of those skeptics who believe the ads from sports marketers to be a load of bunkum? We thought you might be. On the off chance you are, allow us to tell you what you are missing. It's easy to laugh and scoff at the exaggerated claims of sports marketers, but don't underestimate the power of the sporty power of their ads. Sports marketing is a prime example of a mixed success. On one hand, it can provide a great deal of impressive-looking advertising. On the other, it can lead to a very aggressive, sometimes predatory, approach.The spindle pole bodies: an updated overview of their assembly, architecture and the function of the dynactins. The spindle pole body (SPB) is a proteinaceous structure that serves as an anchor for the mitotic spindle and is essential for chromosome segregation. Although this structure is present in all eukaryotic organisms and is highly conserved, its precise function remains to be elucidated. With the use of electron microscopy, a wealth of information about this structure has been gained over the past few years, which will be outlined in this review.Early repolarization syndrome and structural heart diseases. An early repolarization (ER) pattern is an electrocardiographic sign characterized by a QRS complex with broad and concave ST segment elevation. This electrocardiographic pattern is associated with a significantly increased risk of a future ventricular tachycardia, and other arrhythmias. The underlying pathophysiology of ER has not been well-defined, although the association between ER and structural heart diseases, particularly arrhythmogenic right ventricular cardiomyopathy (ARVC), has been noted. In this article, we reviewed the literature pertaining to the association between ER and structural heart diseases, with special emphasis on the underlying path b7e8fd5c8
